THE PLEASURES OF

Men who catch animals in Africa for zoos say that one of the hardest animals to catch is the ring-tailed monkey. For the Zulu tribe of that continent, however, it's simple. The method the Zulu's use is based on knowledge of the animal. Their trap is nothing more than a melon growing on a vine, the seeds of which are a favorite snack of the monkey.

The Zulu's simply cut a hole in the melon, just large enough for the monkey to insert his hand to reach the seeds inside. The monkey will stick his hand in, grab as many of the seeds as he can; then start to withdraw it, and he cannot, since his fist is now larger than the hole. The monkey will pull and tug, screeching and fighting the melon for hours.

However, he can't get free of the trap unless he gives up the seeds, which he refuses to do. Meanwhile, the Zulu/s sneak up and nab him.

A similar trap has been set for people today who, like the monkey, are foolishly holding on to things that are costing them their soul, the "deceitfulness of riches" (Matthew 13:22). "the pleasures of sin for a season" (Hebrews 11:25).

Many have tried drugs, alcohol, sex, entertainment, and many other things, thinking it will give them a thrill. Another path that leads to this trap is seeking fame or popularity through sports, politics, partying, rebellious behavior, or in the way they dress.

So what is the trap? Unlike the monkey, who is put into a cage after
